HAPPENINGS OF INTEREST FROM DIFFERENT SECTIONS

Franklin county goes onto the sugar card system next Monday.

So early in the season the Rutland Ice company reports a shortage and houseto-house delivery has been discontinued.

Henry C. Brownell, for five years assistant professor of history in the Canton Christian college at Canton, China, is in Burlington on a year's furlough, visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey W. Brownell. His wife and three children accompanied him.

Among the army appointments an-nounced from Washington, D. C., July 20 were the following Vermonters: Captain, medical reserve, Edgar Orrin Crossman, Burlington; first lieutenants, medical reserve, Arthur Corliss Liston, Bellows Falls, Linwood Major Kelley, Manchester Center.

The old Booth and Walker hay barn near the depot in Vergennes was burned the first of the week, catching, it is thought, from grass set on fire by a spark from a passing engine. The building was 35 and 50 feet and contained 120 tons of baled hay, owned by Frank E. Foote of Cornwall. The barn belonged to the bankrupt estate of Ida Graustein.

Rev. H. B. Rankin, paster of the First Baptist church in Newport, who has been granted a year's leave of absence to do Y. M. C. A. work overseas, has gone to New York to await further orders. An informal reception was given at the church parlors Sunday evening and was attended by a large number of parishioners and townspeople, present to wish Mr. Rankin good-bye and godspeed. A considerable purse of money was present ed to Mr. Rankin.

Slate manufacturers in Fair Haven are already beginning to feel the short-age of coal. Those getting out electrical drowning last Sunday while bathing at Lake Dunmore. He made a dive from Lake Dunmore. He made a diversion adversion of striking a diving board and instead of striking the water head first landed on his stom ach which knocked the breath out of him and he sank. He came to the survival and the sank. He came to the survival and the sank of the survival and the survival and the sank of the survival and the surviva face and started to swim ashore and his strength gave out and he sank the second time. His father, who was in a boat, saw him go down and dove after him and brought him up and Mike Wis-sell brought him ashore. Mr. Haher did not know that it was his son that he had saved until he reached the shore.

KEEP PULLETS GROWING.

Do Not Move Them from One House to house to another, unless absolutely nec-essary. The difference between early-lay. ing and late-laying pullets may be the difference between profit and loss in notice to the effect that their son, Robconditions. Retarded growth means retarded laying. Every time you move your pullets, you retard their growth, which defers their laying period from two to three weeks. This, with late-hatched birds, means that you are taking a greater chance in getting them to lay before cold weather sets in.

Almost without exception, the pullet whose growth from hatching to maturity has been regular, not subject to checks and interruptions, is an early layer. Normally, laying commences when growth ceases, except perhaps in the small, precocious breeds. The pullet that fails to become an egg producer at maturity, instead of being an asset, becomes an expense which must be made up at some future time; while her sister, who commenced laying at maturity, is paying her way right along, with a profit as well.

Egg production depends to a certain extent upon activity of the reproductive organs. Any disturbance affecting these organs is to be guarded against, such as, a radical change in diet. Such changes are necessary, but should be made as gradually as possible.

Pullets about to begin laying are more sensitive to these changes than at any other time; and when it comes time to tons six years and Annie, our hired girl, catch by the leg and take four or five in erybody thought she hadn't any other each hand; take them one under each name at all, until one evening when Jimarm at night and hold them right side my came over and knocked at the back up. It takes time. Surely, it takes time; door and asked mother if Miss Dornoccur, you will be surprised to see how chairs out in the yard under the apple rapidly egg production increases.

If more information is desired regardor to the agricultural extension service Annie would say, "Yes," and, after she of the University of Vermont and State learned it, "No." So, after a couple of of the University of Vermont and State Agricultural college.

NO OATH REQUIRED

On Primary Petitions, According to Secretary of State Fleetwood.

In preparing the primary petitions to be used throughout the state, I have omitted the certificate of eath thereon, something. So then Annie said: as I believe such certificate is not required to be appended to such petitions. The general assembly enacted number three of the laws of 1917, expressly to do away with the necessity of such oath. don't know what I will ever do without This act is now embodied in section 101 you, Annie." of the general laws. The form given for the petitions in such section does not provide for a certificate of oath. It is true that the word "oath" is used in sections 102 and 104 of the general laws, but I do not think the use of such word in such sections operates in such manner as to make the certificate of oath an essential part of the petition, the form for which is given in section 101. Hon. Hale K. Darling, commissioner on revision, concurs in this view.

I shall therefore file such petitions in my office as are required to be filed therein, without the certificate of oath thereon, and it is my opinion that all other officials in whose offices such petitions are required to be filed should do the Marketing Hogs in Motor Trucks.

An example of how motor trucks are age of coal. Those getting out electrical slate such as is used for switchboards slate such as is used for switchboards and are doing it to fill government orders are of the opinion that they should be provided with fuel for the work. An order was sent to coal dealers about a month ago notifying them not to sell coal for manufacturing purposes and all attempts by slate companies to secure any has met with failure.
